

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention provides novel viral vectors and methods useful for the minimization of leaky gene expression, and, in particular, of nonspecific transcriptional read-through of genes. Such constructs may be obtained by the insertion of an insulating sequence into a vector construct, such as for example a termination signal sequence upstream of the transcription initiation site of the respective transcription unit.